Pablo Sierra has been a partner at Posse Herrera Ruiz since 1998. His professional practice focuses on litigation.

He has extensive experience successfully representing local and international clients before civil courts, especially in the areas of collection procedures, regulation and estimation of damages, and contractual liability and tort liability.

Pablo is one of the few litigants who has a thriving litigation practice within a full-service law firm and has therefore become the litigator of choice for both national and multinational companies in collection and declaratory processes. His expertise in this area is well known in the market.

He is highlighted by The Legal 500 publication in the “Next Generation Partners” category.
